Irish Demand Presented To Germany

Reparations For Bombardment

MANY HOUSES DAMAGED IN DUBLIN

LONDON, January 3.
THE Eire Government has protested to Germany about the bombs dropped on its territory demanding reparation.
DUBLIN BOMBED

Several houses were damaged by bombs dropped by a plane which flew over Dublin this morning, says a message from the Irish Capital. It is feared that some persons are buried under the wreckage. Seven persons have been hitherto removed to hospital.

HOUSES DESTROYED

An unidentified plane at 6.55 dropped one bomb in Donore Avenue, South Circular Road, Dublin, and destroyed two houses, seriously damaged a third and did slighter damage to other houses in the area, states an official announcement, which adds that some twenty people were injured, but none seriously.

A battalion of Defence forces turned out within a few minutes of the explosion and assisted those affected by the bombing. The explosion shook a big area of the city and caused widespread alarm. The bomb blew off roofs, windows and walls and smashed panes of glass within a radius of half a mile.

On Thursday Night

Eire was bombed on Thursday night for the second successive night. Three bombs fell near Enniscorthy, county Wexford. There was no damage and nobody was injured.

Magnetic Mines

The fact that magnetic mines were dropped off the coast of Ireland was revealed by the Eirean Government information bureau on behalf of the Department of Defence of State.

The announcement says: "Magnetic sea mines dropped by parachute from aircraft this morning at Glen Cormack will be destroyed by army engineers on Friday and warns occupants of houses within danger radius to take precautions against explosion."

Irish People's Surprise

There is much surprise in Eire at the widespread random bombing of Wednesday night. The people are at a complete loss to find an explanation and there is speculation in regard to whether the planes lost their way and were not aware of the territory over which they were flying.

The fact that the bomb picked up at Curragh was identified as German and the magnetic mines dropped near Enniscorthy came down in a parachute is taken generally as suggested that the aviators lost their bearings and were possibly unloading at random in order to return home.

Hitler's Fears

Commenting on the bombing of Eire the "Belfast Telegraph" says: "It seems obvious that Herr Hitler fears that Eire is to join the war on the side of Britain and the bombs are a sharp reminder of what she may expect if she does so."

ROOSEVELT WAS RIGHT

"Belfast News Letter" thinks that possibly "the bombs were a warning against the folly of resisting a German invasion of Eire" and adds: "Eire should now be convinced that President Roosevelt was right when he asked if her freedom would be permitted in an unfree world"—Reuter.

BULGARIAN PREMIER IN VIENNA

LONDON, Jan. 3.
The Bulgarian Prime Minister arrived at Vienna to-day. German and Italian sources admit that he is to see Herr von Ribbentrop. The purpose of the visit is still described as "under medical advice."—Reuter.

EIRE CLAIMS REPARATION

BOMBS DROPPED ARE GERMAN

DUBLIN, Jan. 3.
Examination has proved that the bombs dropped in Ireland were of German origin and the Eire Government has lodged a strong protest at Berlin.

Announcing this the Eire Department of External Affairs says:—"Fragments of the explosive and incendiary bombs dropped at Curragh, Julianstown, Dullek and Borris have been examined and found to be of German origin."

The Charge d'Affaires in Berlin has been instructed to make an energetic protest to the German Government against the violation of Irish territory by German aircraft and the loss of life and destruction of property which resulted from bomb explosions and fire.

He was further instructed to claim full reparation and insist that effective steps be taken to avoid a recurrence of such happenings.

An investigation into the origin of bombs dropped at other places is proceeding.—Reuter.

French Fleet Leaves For African Ports

Submarine Torpedoed On Way To Dakar: Nazi Forces Massed On Border: Vichy Cabinet Reshuffle Plans

VICHY, Jan. 3.
The French Admiralty announced that the submarine "Sfax" and the auxiliary "Rhône" sank after heavy explosions while on their way from Casablanca to Dakar.

The Admiralty further states that the "Sfax" and the "Rhône" were "probably torpedoed" by a submarine whose nationality is not yet known. The total death toll was 74.

Fleet Leaves For Africa Unit By Unit

The Lisbon correspondent of the "Daily Express" (London) cables:

Marshal Petain is moving the French fleet unit by unit, to his African ports in preparation for any sudden ultimatum from Hitler to the Government at Vichy.

When Marshal Petain visited the Mediterranean naval base of Toulon some weeks ago he found the battle cruiser "Strasbourg" lying in the harbour with 12 destroyers and torpedo boats.

To-day only the "Strasbourg" and two destroyers remain. The rest have put the blue water between themselves and Herr Hitler. His fleet is the trump card in Marshal Petain's hand and it

GEN. BLOMBERG INTERNED

LONDON, Jan. 3.
A message has reached London that Gen. Von Blomberg, a former member of the German General Staff, is now interned in a fort.

His dismissal from service had never been fully explained, but it is known that he was of the opinion that it was too early for Germany to engage in a war and that if Germany allied with Italy she would not emerge victorious.—Reuter.

Vichy Cabinet

A reorganisation of the Vichy Cabinet is announced to-day, according to a New York message.

A triumvirate consisting of Admiral Darlan, General Huntziger and M. Flandin has been formed to direct the country under Marshal Petain's orders, it is announced, and it is understood that these three will hold most of the Cabinet posts with Admiral Darlan as the chief of the Triumvirate.

M. Baudouin has resigned his office as Secretary of State to the Presidency of the Council.

The information published concerning the reorganisation of the Cabinet is premature, the Havas Agency asserts. The Agency adds that it is possible that certain Cabinet changes will be effected shortly, but no decision has yet been taken.—Reuter.

NO BRITISH SUBMARINES WITHIN 500 MILES

LONDON, Jan. 3.
No British submarines were operating within 500 miles of the scene of the sinking of the French vessels the "Sfax" and the "Rhône" on the day concerned, it was learned on enquiry at the Admiralty.—Reuter.

seems to be having some effect. A traveller who has just arrived from France and who told me of the French naval movements, said that German pressure now seems to be diminishing.

Although the Franco-German negotiations have reached a deadlock, Herr Hitler has not yet made up his mind to act.

German troops are massed along the line separating occupied and non-occupied France and are only restrained from occupying the whole country by Marshal Petain's threat to go to Africa with the French Fleet, according to information received in Madrid quoted in a despatch from the Spanish Capital to the "New York Times".

BOMBAY DEPLORES AZAD'S ARREST

The fact that the Congress President was arrested during the truce declared by Mahatma Gandhi, was deplored by several speakers, at a huge public meeting held under the auspices of the Bombay Provincial Congress Committee at Chowpatty on Friday evening. Dr. D. T. Anklesaria presided.

INDIA'S CHOSEN PATH

Dr. Anklesaria said that they were in no way sorry for the arrest.

The Maulana was anyhow due to offer Satyagraha in a few days and Government had only anticipated that day. Just as the Government were carrying out its programme, the Congress too would carry on its programme.

Gandhiji had put before the country the great programme of non-violence. In a world where nations were engaged in mutual destruction, India had chosen the path of non-violence and self-sacrifice, which was the best way to world-peace.

GOVT. RESPECTS NO TRUCE.

Mr. S. A. Brelvi said that it was a matter of surprise that the Congress President should have been arrested during the period of truce which Gandhiji had declared. It was hoped that the Government would respect the truce, but the Government of Sir Maurice Hallett, which had allowed the sentence of four years' imprisonment passed on Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru to remain had also arrested the Congress President during the period of truce.

Gandhiji had not declared this truce with a view to carry on any negotiations but simply because he wanted the conduct of the campaign to be maintained on a high moral plane. If, however, the Government had any genuine desire for peace they would have gladly utilised the opportunity to bring about a settlement.

GOVT'S MISTAKE.

Maulana Azad had recently said that the Congress would be prepared to consider any proposals similar in import to the Poona offer. By that famous offer, Congress had suggested how India could help Britain as a free, equal and self-respecting (Continued on page 7.)

MAULANA AZAD IN JAIL

Trial To Take Place On Wednesday

ALLAHABAD, Jan. 3.
Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, Congress President, was arrested at the Allahabad junction railway station this morning at about 5-15 a. m. while he was on the way from Delhi to Calcutta.

Maulana Azad was arrested by Mr. S. N. Aga, the City Deputy Superintendent of Police, Allahabad, on a warrant issued from Allahabad under Section 39 of the Defence of India Rules. He has been taken to the Naini Central Jail.

The arrest, it is believed, has been made in connection with a speech delivered by Maulana Azad in Purshottam Das Park on December 13. The warrant, it is learnt, was issued on December 28.

Maulana Azad had intimated to the A. I. C. C. office yesterday that he would be coming to Allahabad on his way to Calcutta from Delhi probably in connection with some office work here. He was due here at 5-15 a. m. by the 8 Down Toofan Express. Mr. Sadik Ali, the Office Secretary of the A. I. C. C., and Mr. S. D. Upadhyaya, Private Secretary to Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, were present at the railway station to receive Maulana Azad, who was to stay in Anand Bhawan.

The charge sheet against Maulana Azad will be sent up by the police some time to-day and it is likely that he will be tried here in the Naini Jail shortly.

BOMBAY, SATURDAY, JANUARY 4, 1941.

TIMELY INDICTMENT

It is a paradox of Indian public life that the leaders of small minorities in this country are more nationalist in their outlook than the spokesmen of either Muslim or Hindu communal organisations. The Parsis, for example, form a microscopic community in India and yet they have disdained to plead for special rights and safeguards. They have boldly thrown in their lot with the general electorate and experience has more than justified their political sagacity and courage. This has a moral for other minorities too, who seem to be frightened by the bugbear of majority rule and cling to their separate existence.

Goodwill, Not Legal Safeguards

The Indian Christians form the third largest community in India, though numerically they, of course, stand far below the Muslims. While many of their forebears have turned their face staunchly against communalism they have been enjoying for the last twenty years the doubtful blessing of separate electorates thanks to the British Government. It is gratifying to find, however, that, by and large, the Indian Christians have never lost their consciousness of being Indians first and Christians next. Their best minds have strongly protested against being cut off from the stream of a common national life and have always warned their fellow-Christians against a narrow parochial outlook. The view was again voiced at the latest session of the All-India Conference of Indian Christians, which was held at Lucknow at the beginning of this week. Speaking on the future of Indian Christians, Dr. D. S. Ramachandra Rao observed in his presidential address: "As a self-respecting people, the Christians should not ask for protection and special privileges. As the second largest minority community in the land they should demand that no one should lose his or her chances in life or in State services on account of one's faith; nothing more, but nothing less. It is not the legislative enactments, but the goodwill of the vast majority of his countrymen that ensures the safety of the Christian." The quotation is long but it sums up the situation in a nutshell. If the other communal leaders in India are actuated by similar sentiments, the communal Frankenstein can be exorcised in no time. It is not by an insistence on our exclusiveness, but by a timely recognition of the common bonds—historical, political and cultural—that bind us all, that we can hope for a regeneration of every community.

Cheap Sneer

One part of the proceedings of the Conference is extremely significant in view of the fact that it is allegedly owing to the fears of the minorities for the future that the present constitutional deadlock has come to pass. The Viceroy has virtually made a solution of the communal problem a condition precedent of constitutional advance. He will therefore, probably rub his eyes to read the speech of the President of Indian Christians' Conference including his statement that "it was a thousand pities that the British Government had stamped India into the war over the heads of accredited Governments of provinces without consulting them." While the first resolution of the Conference expressed grief over the imprisonment of eminent Indian leaders, the second called upon the British Government to fix a definite date for the establishment of full responsible government in India and for the immediate formation of a responsible legislature at the Centre. These resolutions speak for themselves and we make a present of them to Lord Linlithgow and Mr. L. S. Amery, whose argument about communal differences being a bar to India's political progress was scathingly condemned by a distinguished minority leader like the President of the Conference as "a cheap sneer." The Pakistan proposal also was rightly characterised by Dr. Rao as a wild dream. "There were millions of national-minded Christians, Muslims, Parsis, Jains and Sikhs," he observed, "who would work and die to prevent the motherland from being divided and subdivided." The authors of the Pakistan Scheme cannot afford to dismiss this criticism lightly if they are really actuated by a genuine concern for the interest of minorities. At a time when subtle attempts are being made to exaggerate the minority problem and to make of it a bar sinister to India's freedom, the Lucknow session of the All-India Conference of Indian Christians has done a great service to the cause of the country by making an unequivocal declaration of its nationalist views. But, while the argument of Mr. Amery about communal differences being a bar to India's political progress can rightly be dismissed as a cheap sneer, we cannot too strongly emphasize the paramount urgency of the majority community considering the claims of the minorities in a spirit of generosity and of the Indian National Congress, as representing the Nation, never flagging in its efforts to bring about a Hindu-Muslim settlement honourable and satisfying to all parties concerned. That Mr. Jinnah and the Muslim League have adopted an unwise and stubborn attitude as regards Pakistan and the two-nation theory is no argument against negotiating with them with a view to induce them to give it up and accept a settlement that will allay their legitimate fears and satisfy their just demands without jeopardising national integrity and interests. Much less is it an argument for adopting a policy of doing nothing and of waiting for something to turn up. Mahatma Gandhi has lost no opportunity of emphasizing that the carrying out of the constructive programme of the Congress is as important as the offering of Satyagraha, if not more important. The promotion of Hindu-Muslim and inter-communal amity is one of the essential items of the Congress programme. Congressmen must continually turn the searchlight inwards and ask themselves what constructive and vigorous efforts have been made by them in this direction.

Maulana Azad's Arrest

Only had two days passed after twenty-three well-known British women in a letter to the London "Times" appealed for a new approach to the Indian situation and urged the British Government to co-operate in finding a solution of the Indian constitutional deadlock by releasing political prisoners, when the Government of the United Provinces arrested Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, the Congress President. The appeal of British women has fallen on deaf ears and even Gandhi's great gesture of a truce till the fifth of this month did not evoke a response. The truce gave the Government a splendid opportunity, if they were sincere in their desire to transfer real power and real authority to India, of bringing about a settlement with the Congress. The Congress President had, even after the Poona offer had been withdrawn by the Bombay session of the All-India Congress Committee and the Satyagraha campaign inaugurated, on several occasions expressed the readiness of the Congress to accept an honourable compromise if the Government came forward with proposals embodying the substance of that offer. How reasonable and modest that offer was, was demonstrated by the fact that Calcutta session of the All-India Liberal Federation made a demand similar to it. In the last speech, the Congress President said: "Future historians will have to record that there can be no stronger example of political blunder than the one shown by the British statesmen in rejecting the old Poona offer and the other offers made by the Congress from time to time to give their wholehearted support to the successful prosecution of war as a self-respecting and equal partner with the British Government." The history of Britain's connection with India is a tragic one of opportunities missed. In arresting the

Why did the French not hand over their fleet and air force to Britain before signing the armistice?

Mr. Josselyn Hennessy discusses this and other current questions about France in a talk recently broadcast from Delhi by All-India Radio. Mr. Hennessy worked as a special correspondent in France between 1928 and 1937 during which period he became acquainted with many French statesmen and politicians.

Is France dead? This was the question which I put to a lively, intelligent and exceptionally well-informed Free Frenchman who recently passed through India.

His reply was an indignant and emphatic "No." "Why then," I asked him, "did the French Government not despatch the French fleet and air force to British territories before signing the armistice? We English (I said) make no reproaches to France for having signed the armistice; the French armies were defeated in battle; their defeat was due to mistaken strategy and tactics but any one can make a mistake; we do not blame you for mistakes but we find it difficult to understand why you did not hand over the fleet and the air force?"

His explanation was one that I have not seen published before.

He said that the French High Command was convinced that with all the Channel ports and with all the French air bases in German hands, bringing the enemy to within an hour by sea and a few minutes by air from Britain's nerve centres, "Britain was bound to be defeated within the briefest possible period." No body in France imagined that Britain could survive. Nor, I might add, was this view solely confined to France; there were many sympathetic observers in America who last June—how long ago that seems now—thought that Britain's chances of winning the war were poor. A qualified British observer who visited Government circles in Washington at that time reported that the U. S. Government "had reconciled itself to Britain's defeat. It was not a question of 'if' but 'when'." France's collapse was a tremendous shock and American defeatists, envisaging Britain's end, were even urging the abandonment of shipment of war supplies as they thought all equipment would be needed to meet the Nazi menace to America." If America, four thousand miles away from Europe, felt like this about the French armistice, the French leaders on the spot standing in the midst of the ruins wrought by defeat, may be forgiven if they felt no confidence in Britain's future.

His reply was an indignant and emphatic "No." "Why then," I asked him, "did the French Government not despatch the French fleet and air force to British territories before signing the armistice? We English (I said) make no reproaches to France for having signed the armistice; the French armies were defeated in battle; their defeat was due to mistaken strategy and tactics but any one can make a mistake; we do not blame you for mistakes but we find it difficult to understand why you did not hand over the fleet and the air force?"

'Kesari' And 'Maharatta' COMPLETE SIXTY YEARS

By T. V. Parvate

An appeal over the signatures of leading men all over Maharashtra has been issued for public meetings to be held on January 5 to celebrate the Diamond Jubilee of "Kesari" and "Maharatta", the well-known Poona newspapers. Meetings were similarly held in 1921 when the Golden Jubilee of the papers was celebrated ten years ago.

Both these journals have published their special Diamond Jubilee numbers.

The first issue of "Kesari" saw the light of day on Tuesday, January 4, 1881 and that of the "Maharatta" on Sunday, January 2, of the same year. The publication of these two newspapers was one of the activities of a patriotic band of young men headed by the late Vishnu Krishna Chiplunkar. The other activities were the starting of the New English School, the Kitabkhana, the Chitrasahala etc. The New English School latterly developed into the Deccan Education Society, which is conducting several High Schools in the Province, as well as the two Arts Colleges, the Ferguson and the Willington at Sangli. "Kesari" and the "Maharatta" became the late Lokamanya Tilak's exclusive property and they are now the property of a public trust.

Among those who joined Chiplunkar in the early stages were such eminent men as Tilak, Agarwal, Apté, Gole, Gokhale and later Rajwade and Paranjpye. Tilak was the first editor of the "Maharatta" and Agarwal of the "Kesari." Messrs. N. C. Kelkar and K. P. Khadilkar were Tilak's first distinguished colleagues. They ran the papers in his spirit during his two terms of jail. They were his colleagues not only as newspapermen but in all his public activities. During the Home Rule Movement, they did splendid work. Mr. Kelkar accompanied the Lokamanya to England as a member of the Home Rule League Deputation, when the Montford Reforms were on the anvil and Mr. Khadilkar was in charge of the "Kesari." After Tilak's death, Messrs. Kelkar and Khadilkar parted company, the Congress President instead of utilizing the truce to bringing about a reconciliation with India, the agents in India of the British Government have not harmed India but have ill served Britain and her own interests.

Letters smuggled out from France report that B. B. C. broadcasts are widely heard even though attempts are made to jam them. Listening in is not forbidden in the non-occupied zone, though it is by no means encouraged.

The "Gringoire," a notorious anti-British sheet published in Clermont-Ferrand, reports bitterly that "it is impossible to walk along the streets without hearing B. B. C. poison pouring out from every door and window."

"What about Dakar?" I asked my friend, "why did de Gaulle's expedition there fail?" He replied that General de Gaulle acted on cast iron information that an overwhelming majority of the French in that area were ready to receive him. There are, however, pointed out, a certain number of French soldiers in England who have not joined the Free French movement and whose repatriation has been postponed following the German sinking of the "Meknes", the ship in which a large number of them were being repatriated from England. Unfriendly individuals amongst these, he said, had got wind of de Gaulle's impending expedition and had found means to communicate it to the Vichy Government through neutral channels; these channels communicated it not only to Vichy but to the Germans, who immediately ordered the French to send picked men in certain French battleships to Dakar and also instructed Vichy to order those French leaders in Dakar who were suspected of being favourable to de Gaulle to be dispersed in places in the interior of the Colony.

My French friend admitted that this was a set-back, but he insisted that it was only temporary and that the Free French movement in French as being responsible for putting absurd illusions into the heads of the French.

Britain's continued successful resistance to Germany and her notable victories over the Italians in Africa have had the most profound repercussions on the Vichy Government.

They have awakened the Vichy Government to the reality that Britain far from being about to collapse before Germany like a pack of cards shows every sign of vigorous life.

While it would, perhaps, be too much to say that Britain's successes have changed Vichy's policy from one of abject appeasement to one of resistance, it can definitely be said that they have revived the hitherto stunned force of public opinion in France and have undermined the position of the abject appeasement already some weeks ago M. Baudouin, as well as the Permanent Under-Secretary of the Foreign Office, resigned in protest against M. Laval's abject policy. The next development has been the infusion of sufficient fresh hope in Marshal Petain's breast to decide him to get rid of M. Laval. This does not mean that we can expect some dramatic renewal of the war against Germany by Metropolitan France; this would be a physical impossibility; but it does mean that the Vichy Government realises that it possesses a considerable amount of nuisance value to Germany which it can exploit against Germany. The Vichy Government can always say: "If you press us too far, we shall not be able to retain our control of the French Colonial Empire which aided by British arms will go to war against you." A glance at the map of the Mediterranean sea shows how dangerous this would be for the Axis Powers.

M. Flaminio has now replaced M. Laval as Foreign Minister. When I used to know M. Flaminio in France some years ago, he had the reputation of being very pro-British and he liked to visit his distinguished English friends clad in the uniform of the French Empire.

Frankly Speaking

Senor On Tangier

Senor Suner has made an interesting statement on the subject of the illegal Spanish occupation of the International Zone of Tangier. Senor Suner says that Germany and Italy reacted in the natural way of real friendship. This is natural enough, but it does not exclude the possibility of Germany having incited Spain to take the step. As to the other two Powers concerned, France and Britain, it is instructive to observe how, when the mighty fall they are humiliated even by mid-gets. For Senor Suner attacks the French "whose military valour has not been accompanied by fortune." Towards Britain, however, he is even a little complimentary by contrast: "One people, still very much engaged in war adopted an attitude to a certain extent, of understanding...." Two things emerge from Senor Suner's statement. First, that the British have virtually submitted for the present, to Spain's action feeling that in the circumstances they can go no further. Second, that Spain probably because of her own "practical sense" appreciates the British attitude despite Germany.

New Year Wails

Even a passing comparative glance at the New Year reactions—as reported so far—of the "Tri-ang" Powers yields interesting results. The Nazi leaders boasted blustered, Fascist leaders remained sadly dumb but the Japanese leaders wailed pathetically. And rightly so. The crisis that Japanese statesmen provoked and that is now approaching Japan ruthlessly and overwhelmingly has now got to be admitted to the Japanese public. The promises that Tokyo imperialists made to their people so that they might, as they did, undergo tremendous sacrifices have not only not been realised; Japan actually faces disaster too. Hence the frank and pathetic appeals by these men. The Japanese Premier says that his people "should face increased international pressure and endure unprecedented hardships." (Our italics) His War Minister echoes his confessions with even more frankness. For, he says: "Now that the China affair has assumed world-wide dimensions and the European situation has become more complicated and serious our future is beset with untold difficulties." (Our italics).

Deprecate Position

The Japanese have burnt not only their fingers but also virtually both their hands. They have not only failed to bring off "the China Incident", but reports justify the confidence of the Chinese military authorities that 1941 will see the Japanese beaten well and thoroughly. In their desperation, moreover, the Japanese signed a Pact with the Axis and gained more increased antagonism of Russia, America and Britain. Today they are naturally "beset with untold difficulties." What is worse for their leaders is that the Japanese public itself has begun to see realities. In this connection it is significant to note that the Premier has been obliged publicly to confess that doubts in, and criticisms of, his Government are growing. Such developments are usually connected with the last stages of a regime's life.

Wild Rumours

If the latest reports by the Istanbul correspondent of the Free French Agency and Reuter's correspondent on the Rumanian frontier are correct the conflict between the Iron Guards and Rumanian Leftists—and, therefore, the tension between the Nazis and the Soviet—continues to grow. Moreover, the "Legionary State" is being converted by General Antonescu with German assent—and German reinforcements on Antonescu's request—into a military regime. All these are serious developments. But it would be foolish to attach any importance to the American report via Berna, (in Switzerland) that Odessa (in Russia) has been placed in a state of siege and that Russians are massing troops on the German and Rumanian frontiers. Herr Hitler, we still believe, is not a fool deliberately to court trouble on two fronts.

A Myth

Dr. K. S. Ray, presiding over the Seventeenth All-India Medical Conference at Vizagapatam, made the striking observation that the retention of the I. M. S. in civil employment as war reserve was only a myth and that if Indian medical men had not volunteered in large numbers to serve in the present as well as in the last war, the number of I. M. S. officers, who were kept in civil employment as war reserves, would never have been sufficient to cope with the war situation. "The only thing, therefore," Dr. Ray said, "that I would like to say in this connection is that the demand of the I. M. A. for the complete abolition of the I. M. S. and of the administrative posts of the Surgeon-General and the Inspector-General of Civil hospitals remains unchanged."

TETE-A-TETE

WITHOUT COMMENT.

It is futile for Mr. Gandhi to plead his conscience in such a matter. This war is being fought for the defence of religion, right and justice and to plead conscience against it is sheer hypocrisy and a perversion of natural truth.

Maulana Abul Kalam was arrested at Allahabad on January 3. A little belated. But you will agree that the Government have not been altogether late in offering, as it were, their New Year greeting to the Indian National Congress.

By the way, the rumour is not correct that some one not a hundred miles from Bombay—as the saying is—has sent his congratulations on this arrest to Sir Maurice Hallett.

No, it is not correct, and, at best, only intelligent anticipation of feelings.

For once a Japanese Minister has spoken the truth truly and literally.

Says the official Italian News Agency: "On the occasion of the arrival in Italy of some sections of the German air force, the chief of the Italian Air Staff General Priolo, has published an order of the day...."

And when the rest of the sections of the German air force has arrived General Priolo will duly cease to publish any order of the day.

Sweeping Powers For Italian Government, says a headline.

What Italy, Italians and the Italian Government urgently need is self-sweeping power of the Italian Government.

BIG ASSAULT ON BARDIA STARTS

Australian Forces Penetrate Defences

R. A. F. BOMBARD TOWN Tripoli Harbour Attacked: Trail Of Fire Visible For 60 Miles

CAIRO, Jan. 3.

Just after dawn this morning Australian forces supported by tanks penetrated a sector of the defences of Bardia, states a Communique from the British G. H. Q. It adds that operations are continuing. There is nothing to report on other fronts.

EXPECTING AN OFFENSIVE

The news of the Australians' successful action against a sector of Bardia's defences has aroused the keenest interest in authoritative circles in London, where it is suggested that while the operations reported to-day may be only a raid on a large scale, an offensive might well develop.

The Bardia defences are of considerable depth—probably some five or six miles—consisting of anti-tank devices of all kinds, concrete pill-boxes, machinegun nests, barbed wire and artillery. These would take some time to penetrate and while Italian guns have not been active of late, it is thought the reason for this silence is that the Italians could not accurately bombard the British positions as they had no command of the air and thus could not use aeroplanes for spotting.

Bardia Bombed

Bardia was again subjected to a series of raids, large fires being started among stores and buildings. Two further raids were made on Thursday, mainly on a motor transport concentration and an encampment west of the town, causing considerable damage, the extent of which was confirmed by photographs.

Numerous reconnaissance flights were carried out in Italian East Africa, but there is nothing outstanding to report. From all these operations all the British aircraft returned safely.

Tripoli Attacked

Two heavy raids on shipping in Tripoli harbour were carried out by the R. A. F. during Wednesday night, says a "communique" issued at the R. A. F. Headquarters.

During the first attack bombs straddled the south-east mole and five cruisers moored there, other bombs hitting the customs jetty and one ship and starting several fires near seaplane hangars. Explosions and fresh fires followed and the seaplane hangars started burning.

During the second raid direct hits were registered on the Customs Jetty, causing five fires and three explosions, probably on ships moored alongside. Two large motor vessels were hit, clouds of heavy smoke resulting. The fires were visible for over sixty miles.

STOP PRESS

8-HOUR DAY SUSPENDED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. President Roosevelt has suspended the eight-hour working day for labourers and mechanics employed by the Government in the construction of army and air bases on the Atlantic coast and on the Caribbean sites leased from Britain.

An executive order states that the suspension has been rendered necessary by "extraordinary emergency". President Roosevelt at a press conference declared that the order was issued to conform with the situation in the British Colonies involved.—Reuter.

U. S. TO BUILD 200 SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. President Roosevelt announced that steps were being taken to begin the building of about two hundred ships.—Reuter.

THAILAND-INDO-CHINA FRONTIER INCIDENTS

VICHY, Jan. 3. Fresh incidents on the frontier between Indo-China and Thailand are reported in a Havas Agency dispatch from Hanoi. The incidents which are described as "not serious" took place at various points along the border following encounters between patrols.—Reuter.

To Represent U. S. President?

Roosevelt Sends Hopkins To England

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3. President Roosevelt disclosed that he was shortly sending Mr. Harry Hopkins, former Secretary for Commerce to Britain as his personal representative until a new Ambassador was appointed to succeed Mr. Kennedy. Mr. Roosevelt added that Mr. Hopkins would have no official status and no duties outside Britain, his duties being to maintain personal contacts with the British Government. The President said that he expected to send his nomination for the new Ambassador to the Senate next week.—Reuter.

Bringing President And Premier Together

President Roosevelt's announcement of Mr. Hopkins' forthcoming visit to London came as a complete surprise in Washington and has aroused much speculation. There is probably no man in America so close to the President as Mr. Hopkins who is, therefore, in excellent position to inform Mr. Churchill very precisely where the President stands. In other words there is no man more able to bring the President and the Prime Minister closer together across the three thousand miles of the Atlantic. The President's announcement that he expected to send the name of the new Ambassador to Britain to the Senate next week has re-awakened speculation but so far no new names have been suggested.—Reuter.

R. A. F. Pays Nazis In Their Own Coin

LONDON, Jan. 3.

A German "communique" admits that fires were started in several warehouses and factories in Bremen.

Military objectives at Amsterdam were bombed by the R.A.F. during Thursday night as well as Bremen and Emden, the Air Ministry announces.

One British plane is missing. WEDNESDAY'S FIRES STILL BURNING

Although last night the raid on Bremen was not on the same scale as on the previous night's raid, the attack again was very successful.

Official announcement giving this information says that fires from Wednesday night were still burning and these were increased. Large new fires were started.

Early reports speak of the pilots being unable to observe the bursts of their bombs because of the flames.

R. A. F. ATTACK INVASION BASES

Flashes and flares in the sky and muffled explosions from the direction of the French coast to-night indicated that R.A.F. bombers had braved icy weather conditions in the straits of Dover to again attack German invasion ports. Many searchlights beamed heavy banks of low clouds.

The Germans were to some extent paid back in their own coin in a heavy R. A. F. raid on Bremen on Wednesday night. It is understood that apart from big loads of high explosive bombs, the British bombers carried quantities of incendiaries which started big fires in the target area.

An official "communique" describing the raid says that the attack was heavy and lasted some three and a half hours. Ship-building and dockyards and a railway station were subjected to a concentrated discharge of incendiary and high explosive bombs. Large fires and explosions were seen. Ports in enemy occupied territory including Flushing, Ostend and Brest were also attacked. None of our aircraft is missing.—Reuter.

Berlin Communique On R. A. F. Bombing

British planes last night dropped bombs on factories at three places in north-western Germany, causing some damage, according to to-day's (Thursday's) German High Command "communique."—Reuter.

"A MOMENTOUS CHALLENGE"

LONDON, (By Cable.)

The "Times" publishes the following cable from the German frontier:

It is known that Hitler and Ribbentrop have been in almost continuous conference since the complete text of Mr. Roosevelt's broadcast was received, studying its purport from every conceivable angle.

A Wilhelmstrasse spokesman told foreign correspondents that possibly there would be a formal reply later. The President's pronouncement, he said, was such a momentous challenge that German political circles would indeed be surprised if a more direct and comprehensive reply was not made within the next few days, since such an omission would almost constitute the Fuehrer's capitulation on certain fundamentals on which there could be no compromise.

The most striking thing about the spokesman's statement was its lack of any trace of the threatening note he adopted when, addressing foreign correspondents on December 22, he "warned" the United States that Germany's patience under provocation was not inexhaustible. Sorrow and disappointment rather than anger are now the keynote.

Mr. Roosevelt's utterance is variously described as "very aggressive and appealing to the lowest instinct of the American people", undignified in tone, not strong in arguments and unwelcome in purpose, not sensational, not surprising and following merely the well-known Roosevelt lines, "charged with falsehoods, improbabilities, incongruities and intentional insults to Germany and Italy".

CONSPIRACY CHARGE AGAINST MADRAS CONGRESSMEN

MADRAS, Jan. 3.

The Police filed a charge-sheet before the Chief Presidency Magistrate to-day against Messrs. S. M. Kumaramangalam, S. Subramania Sarna, T. Hanumanth Rao, K. K. Kumappa, Hanumanth Rao, K. K. Kumappa, C. S. Subramaniam and Umantha Rao under Rule 38(5) of the Defence of India Rules read with sections 117 and 120 B (abetment and criminal conspiracy) I.P.C. and Rule 39 (6) of the Defence of India Rules.

The Police alleged that between January and December 1940 the accused conspired to influence the conduct or attitude of the public in Madras in a manner likely to be prejudicial to the Defence of India and to the efficient prosecution of the war and to instigate directly or indirectly the use of criminal force against public servants. The accused were further charged with having possessed prejudicial reports as defined in the Defence of India Rules. The case has been posted to January 17.—A. P.

BOMBAY DEPLORES AZAD'S ARREST

(Continued from Page 1) nation. Maulana Azad had said that the Government had committed a great mistake in turning down the offer. This mistake, the speaker thought, would bring no good either to Britain or to India.

Now that Gandhi had launched the campaign, he was determined to keep it going till freedom was achieved. Not all were expected to offer Satyagraha, but it was the duty of all patriotic Indians to strengthen the Congress by taking to Khaddar, promoting Hindu-Muslim unity and by carrying on the other items of the constructive programme.

Mr. Asok Mehta explained the object of the Satyagraha movement. All that the Congress had asked was the right to carry on anti-war propaganda.

Mr. Abdulla Jafferbhoy said that Maulana Azad, through his influence, had achieved in his mission in Sind. He had also succeeded in bringing the Ahirars within the Congress fold. This had perhaps upset the Government, who arrested him even before he offered Satyagraha.

Mr. S. L. Silam exhorted the audience not to be angered or excited, but steadily to carry on the constructive programme.

CALL TO WOMEN. Mrs. Violet Alva said that the Government had made a new year's offering, in the arrest of the Congress President. It meant that their protest had been felt. She appealed to the women in particular to make all necessary sacrifices in the cause of India's freedom.

The meeting was adjourned soon afterwards.—A. P.

On Greek Front

More Italians Taken Prisoner

Tepelini And Klisoura May Fall Any Moment; R.A.F. Raid On Elbasan

(From Our Correspondent)

ATHENS, January 3.

The fall of Tepelini and Klisoura is considered imminent.

GREEKS PUT UP A GOOD SHOW

Greeks are continuing to nibble their way forward in all sectors in Albania, according to news reaching London.

They crossed the river Bence in the southern sector and advanced about three miles. It is stated in authoritative military circles in London. Their capture of 12 guns, 20 machine-guns and 500 prisoners proved that the Greeks must have put up a good show. It is pointed out.

It would seem that this advance, if successfully continued, would threaten to cut the road which runs from Tepelini to Valona. The river Bence flows down from Tepelini in a south-westerly direction.

In the central sector the Greeks have occupied Dobranje, about 28 miles south-east of Berat.

There is no fresh news from Libyav and the main thing appears to be the continued inactivity of the enemy.

ELBASAN RAIDED

An R. A. F. raid on Elbasan yesterday was attended with considerable success, it is announced from the R. A. F. Headquarters.

Both high explosive and incendiary bombs were used and seen to fall in the centre of the town. Three large fires were started and a large building in the centre of the town was hit and flames seen coming from it.

All British aircraft returned safely.

PATROL CLASHES

To the extreme north of Lin in the Lake Ochrida area, patrol clashes began after dawn on Thursday and in some places heavy fighting has developed. Piskopati, on Lake Ochrida, south of Lin, was attacked by the Italians but within two hours the Greeks had taken the initiative and wiped out the Italian gains.

North of Moskopolls on the central front the Italians attacked a strongly defended Greek line in several waves. The Greeks had to fight hard before they succeeded in reducing pressure by skilful manoeuvre on the northern flank. Their losses were considerable. The Italians have been very active in this central sector during the last few days, attacking desperately in an attempt to force Greek withdrawal and hold up the Greek right wing on the Skumbi river.

TRANSPORT DIFFICULTIES

As a result of melting snows great volumes of water are pouring from the mountains into the Skumbi and Devrol rivers, creating great transport difficulties for both armies. Some brigades have been swept away in the rear of both of them. Adverse weather conditions have prevented air activity on either side.

GREEKS ADVANCE DESPITE FIERCE ENEMY RESISTANCE

While the weather has been holding up operations on most of the front in the past 24 hours, north of Klisoura Greek troops have advanced despite strong enemy resistance and occupied several villages.

Storms now raging over Albania are making any further movement on either side extremely difficult and have also brought the enemy's air activity to a standstill.

The capture of two guns and further material in the neighbourhood of Klisoura is announced by an official spokesman here.

MORE PRISONERS AND MACHINE-GUNS CAPTURED "Successful local action" is reported in a Greek communique to-night which also records capture of prisoners and a number of machine-guns.

"GOD HAS CHOSEN US TO DEFEND HUMANITY'S MOST PRECIOUS THINGS"

The wish that the New Year may be glorious for Greece, victorious for the Greek armies and happy for the Greek people is expressed by General Metaxas in a New Year broadcast to the Greek people in which he urges the

Italian U-Boat Sunk

British Submarine's Achievement!

LONDON, Jan. 3. The British submarine "Thunderbolt" sank an Italian submarine which was proceeding under an escort to its base in enemy occupied territory, the Admiralty announces.

HOW IT WAS SUNK

After firing a torpedo, the "Thunderbolt's" commander saw a tall column of water rise into the air from the Italian U-boat. A loud explosion was heard and when the smoke and spray cleared, the vessel was seen sticking out of the water at a steep angle and this quickly disappeared.

The U-boat's escort consisting of three armed trawlers dropped depth-charges as soon as they realised that an attack was taking place. Since the explosion of the torpedo was both seen and heard and as the U-boat would not have dived, while the escorting trawlers were dropping depth-charges in its proximity, it is considered certain that the U-boat was sunk.

It is possible that on this occasion, the Admiralty "Communique" concludes to depart from the normal procedure of refraining from announcing losses inflicted upon enemy submarines since the incident was witnessed by the enemy's escorting vessels.

The British submarine "Thunderbolt" was formerly known as the "Thetis". She sank off North Wales in 1939 with the loss of a hundred lives, while undergoing trials. She was subsequently salvaged and an official inquiry established that there was no fault in her structure or design. She was then repaired and commissioned under a new name.—Reuter.

hearers to give thanks from the bottom of their hearts because God has chosen the Greeks as defenders of the most precious things that humanity possesses, and raised them from their humility to the pedestal of the elect.

Mr. Harold Vanderbilt, Honorary Chairman of the Greek War Relief Association, has announced that a sum of one million dollars has been cabled to Athens for war relief.—Reuter.

BITTER FIGHTING ON ALBANIAN FRONT

LONDON, Jan. 3.

Hitler Calls Halt To Massing Troops

RUSSIA PREPARED FOR ATTACK BY GERMANY

NEW YORK, January 3. German troops are massed along the line separating occupied and non-occupied France and are only restrained from occupying the whole country by Marshal Petain's threat to go to Africa with the French Fleet, according to information received in Madrid quoted in a despatch from the Spanish Capital to the "New York Times" to-day (Friday).

State Of Siege At Odessa

A STATE OF SIEGE HAS BEEN DECLARED AT ODESSA, ACCORDING TO A BERNE DESPATCH TO THE "NEW YORK TIMES" WHICH ADDS THAT RUSSIAN TROOPS ARE MASSED ALONG THE NORTHERN BANK OF THE RIVER DNIESTER FROM LWOV (LEMBERG) TO ODESSA, "WHICH SEEM CONFIRMED BY THE DIVERSITY OF SOURCES FROM WHICH THEY ARE CIRCULATING."

THE DESPATCH ADDS THAT THIS SEEMS TO INDICATE THAT THE RUSSIANS ARE EXPECTING A GERMAN ATTACK AND PLAN TO ABANDON STANISLAWOW IN POLAND—REUTER.

Hitler Not In Habit Of Shouting From House-tops

LONDON, (By Cable). Bernon Bartlett writes in the "News Chronicle".

The British Government has too high an opinion of Hitler's cunning to be impressed by the many reports of German troop movements in the Balkans.

The greater the number of sources from which the news comes, the more probable it is that the Nazis are carrying out a manoeuvre in their war of nerves. The man who can make his complicated arrangements for the invasion of Norway in such secrecy is not likely to allow his plans to be shouted from the house-tops.

Winter weather will inevitably slow down the Greek advance in Albania and, in any case, the British have already been enabled by Mussolini's blunder to establish valuable island bases in the Aegean Sea.

It is therefore not clear why Hitler should attack at this moment.

Congress President's Trial On Wednesday

Thanks, Mr. Aga. Mr. S. N. Aga, City Deputy Superintendent of Police, accompanied by a Sub-Inspector had been waiting at the railway station unnoticed. Maulana Azad was still on the platform when he was presented the warrant of arrest.

Maulana Saheb cordially greeted Mr. Aga and said with a smile, "Thank you very much. You have made it very easy for me. I did not even have to offer satyagraha."

On a suggestion from Mr. S. D. Upadhyaya, Private Secretary to Pandit Nehru, Mr. Aga took Maulana Azad to the refreshment room at the railway station, where the Maulana had a wash, change and tea in comfort. He was then driven off to the Naini Jail.

Acharya Kripalani, it may be added, is not in Allahabad at present. Having gone to Wardha to see Mahatma Gandhi, he was represented at the railway station by Mr. Sadiq Ali, the Office Secretary of the A. I. C. C. in order to receive the Maulana.

Maulana Azad came to Allahabad last time from Calcutta on December 10 and stayed here for five days before returning to Calcutta. During his stay here, he addressed local Congress workers in Anand Bhawan in addition to seeing to the A. I. C. C. office work, and addressed a public meeting in the Purshottam Das Park on December 13.

The A. I. C. C. office has tele-ment. If he waits until spring he would benefit from his great superiority in mechanised transport and from the use of the Danube which is now freezing up for winter.

If, in fact, a winter campaign is planned, the only obvious explanation of it is that either Hitler is growing short of oil or that Mussolini is unable to carry on the war without some success with which to keep his people quiet.

But to get a sense of proportion it should be emphasised that none of the information reaching London from various sources justifies belief in rumours founded upon anything more important than the cancelling of trains in Hungary. In any case it is believed that the number of German troops in Rumania has been greatly and intentionally exaggerated.

WELL-KNOWN LADY PHYSICIAN HONOURED

M. B. E. For Dr. Mrs. Dadabhoi

(From A Correspondent.) Amongst the few recipients of higher honours in The New Year's List the name of a leading lady physician of Bombay, and social worker Dr. Mrs. Dossibai J. R. Dadabhoi, M.D. (London) has been keenly appreciated by a large circle of her friends and admirers. Mrs. Dadabhoi has had a very distinguished career both as a student and a doctor.

WOMBAT!

In form and action wombats resemble small bears, having a similar shuffling walk, but shorter in the legs with broader backs. The beautiful creature on the left of the photograph however represents an outdoor girl of Australia, typical of many one meets on the sunny beaches, the romantic Coral Islands, the Golf Courses and, during the winter months, on the vast snow fields. Winter Brings Discontent In Austria

LONDON. (By Cable.) The "Daily Telegraph" publishes the following cable from the Austrian frontier. It is learned from reliable sources in Vienna that the severity of winter is causing much discontent in Austria. The shortage of foodstuffs, and especially fuel, is very great. Coal is almost unobtainable in Vienna.

Under such conditions enthusiasm for the Nazis, which was evident even among the Austrians at the period of German victories, has almost disappeared. The townspeople have now to face and think of the difficulties of the situation and belief in an eventual German victory has markedly lessened, especially among workers.

The result is already apparent in the internal political life of Austria. Many meetings organised by Nazi party in workers' quarters in Vienna had to be postponed or cancelled owing to the smallness of the audiences.

Even threats of personal reprisals did not have the desired effect and in some cases the attendance was only five or ten. The Nazi salute is given infrequently and many persons were recently arrested for expressing open dissidence.

Many Austrians are again having dreams of Austrian independence. Communist propaganda has been more active and many believe that a recent railway accident on the Semmering was the result of sabotage.

IS FRANCE DEAD?

In a Norfolk shooting jacket with a jaunty looking feather in his soft hat. Whether he is pro-German to-day or not, I do not know, but my information is that whatever his views, there is no question of Marshal Petain and General Weygand agreeing to the voluntary delivery of the French fleet into Hitler's hands or allowing German troops to move through non-occupied France.

★ Marshal Petain and General Weygand are willing to try the experiment of co-operation with Germany, but obstinately refuse to make certain concessions which Britain's victories and the black-mailing value of the French Empire enable them to feel strong enough to reject.

★ Marshal Petain, said my friend, looks with disavour upon an extreme anti-British policy, and himself recently instructed the French radio to drop their violent attacks upon Britain. I have heard hard words said of Marshal Petain but from personal acquaintance with him, I feel able to say with confidence that whatever one may think of his judgment and policy, he is no traitor but a sincere and honest man who will do his best for his country according to his lights.

★ Meanwhile the French home public, though passive and not anxious to do any more fighting, remains very distrustful of Franco-German co-operation, and still places its hope in British victory. Further, the French colonies are unwilling to be made the subject of a barter which, if an attempt were made by Vichy to conclude one, would probably lead to their rejection of Vichy's leadership.

★ Expectations of an early settlement between France and the Axis have thus become nebulous. Though M. Laval was apparently willing to go to the extreme limit in concessions to Germany and his newspaper, "Le Moniteur," supported an extreme anti-British tendency, other voices have been raised. The great French paper "Le Temps" recently wrote: "It would be an insult to the French people if certain material alleviations weighed down the scales in order to facilitate acceptance of the concessions."

★ And now here is the remarkable opinion of a high German staff officer attached to General von Stuepnagel, Military Governor of France, given in an interview with the Italian newspaper "Regime Fascista":

"A French revolution is impossible now because France has been disarmed and is impotent but many French still hope in their hearts for a British victory."

★ Collaboration with the invader was frank as long as the Germans only had contact with the peasants, but, says the German officer, "since the return of the middle classes, passionate propaganda against us has developed." A revolution might come "the moment we leave and release the two million French prisoners who constitute the youngest and the most vital part of the French people." The "Regime Fascista" urges Nazi propaganda among French prisoners.

The existence of widespread opposition in France, especially in the occupied territory to the policy of collaboration with Germany is also recorded by the Vichy correspondent of the Swiss newspaper "Neue Zuercher Zeitung."

★ Pro-British sentiment is rising rapidly in France and many young Frenchmen are attempting to escape to join the British forces or General de Gaulle's, French citizens arriving in New York in the liner "Excalibur" were quoted as saying by the "New York Times" recently.

HOW VITAL SEA ROUTES ARE PROTECTED

Effect Of Enemy Campaign Against Merchantmen

LONDON. (By Special Cable.) Lord Strabolgi writes:—The basic fact of the naval situation is that maritime lines of communication all over the world are controlled by the British Fleet. The only exception is the Baltic Sea. There, owing to the seizure of Denmark, the entrance is effectively controlled by Germany. This control does not extend to within range of enemy shore batteries, so that the eastern entrance to the English Channel by the Straits of Dover is in dispute. Everywhere else the control is effective and this despite two major events since the present war broke out, the capitulation of France and the intervention of Italy.

Effective control does not mean that occasional blockade runners cannot escape, nor that enemy submarines cannot surface raiders, suitably disguised, such as the vessel recently engaged by the Armed merchant cruiser "Carnarvon" in the North Atlantic. Such escapes are usually by way of the Norwegian coast which is itself held by the Germans.

Such escapes are, however, owing to their facilities for evasion, can operate against British merchant shipping as they did right through the last war. What it does most in that respect is a certain percentage of loss by enemy action. British merchant shipping can sail the seas and carry on export and import trade and that troops and their equipment can be moved freely in any theatre of war in British Convoys.

It would not be practicable for example for the Germans to send an army by sea anywhere except in the Baltic. The invasion of the "British Isles", if ever attempted, would be hazardous and indeed would only be possible at all if such air ascendancy could be obtained by the Germans over the English Channel or the North Sea that British warships could be driven away for a long enough period for the invading troops and their equipment to be landed and for their lines of communication to be kept open for further supplies. In the Mediterranean the Italian Fleet has been so reduced by the air attacks at Taranto and the naval action off Sardinia that their armies in Libya are now in peril. While the battle of Sidi Barrani was being fought, British warships were able to support the advancing army and bombard Italian positions and the coastal road without interference from the Italian Navy. The defence of Egypt and the counter attack on the invading force were made possible because convoys of troops and supply ships could be taken through the Mediterranean to Alexandria, under cover of British naval forces. It is true that, although much of equipment and stores has been sent to Egypt round the Cape of Good Hope for convenience, at any time a large convoy can be sent from one end of the Mediterranean to the other facing only the usual hazards of war. In the same way the British are now garrisoning Crete and have stationed naval and aerial forces on that island thus preventing any Italian naval action in the Aegean to aid their campaign against the Greeks and blockading the Dodecanese islands. The often debated problem as to whether Italian air power could counterbalance British naval power in the Mediterranean would appear to be solved. Similarly the Italian garrisons in Abyssinia and East Africa can neither be reinforced nor supplied by sea and therefore are living on their accumulated stores.

★ German naval losses since the outbreak of the war, and especially in the Norwegian campaign, have been so heavy that only two large warships of the original German fleet survive. These are the battle-cruiser "Scharnhorst" and the "Lutnow" a "pocket battleship" formerly the "Deutschland". One heavy cruiser of the "Hipper" class and at the most four light cruisers survive. One heavy cruiser the "Prinz Eugen" may be ready next year and two new battleships, the "Bismarck" and "Tirpitz", will be completed soon. The line of battle of the British Navy consists of fourteen dreadnoughts out of fifteen at the beginning of the war and certain important reinforcements which have since been added. The balance of naval power would not be affected by the completion of new German warships. A certain proportion of the French fleet is manned by the adherents of General De Gaulle and is co-operating with the British Navy, and these include the old battleship "Courbet", which was completely reconstructed and reboilered in 1929. Even if Germany obtained the use of the French warships which adhere to the Vichy Government, Britain would still have a sufficient margin to maintain effective control of the sea routes.

★ To meet this situation the German High Command is attempting to counter the British blockade by sinking merchant ships with submarines, long-range aircraft surface raiders and by laying minefields, usually from aircraft at night. This counter-blockade is aided by the use of French ports, notably Brest and L'Orient giving direct access to the Atlantic, and also by making use of the considerable Italian flotilla of submarines. Sinkings of merchant ships reached a serious level in the months immediately following the French capitulation. These sinkings have now been reduced and are well below the losses inflicted by the German submarine campaign in 1916 and 1917. The long winter nights aid this form of attack and it has taken time for British counter-measures to be brought into play.

★ Unless there are unforeseen developments in this counter-blockade the losses it inflicts will not vitally affect the British effort. Thanks to the merchant shipping of Norway, Holland, Belgium and France, most of which escaped capture and heavy additions, by new shipbuilding and purchase of the shipping at the disposal of the British Government is not substantially lower than in September 1939.

★ authorities in France and particularly in the French Overseas Empire is stiffening towards resistance. My friend said that if the Germans made any attempt to parcel out the French Empire between them and Italy, armed resistance would certainly be offered and he added that in certain conditions armed resistance might not wait for any such German plans to mature.

★ "France is not dead," he concluded with fierce Gallie fervour and I can assure you that his position enables him to speak with authority.

BRITISH NAVAL INCURSION INTO ADRIATIC

Turkish Press Comments Enthusiastically

The entry of British naval forces into the Adriatic is claimed by the Turkish Press. "Cumhuriyet" writes: "We expected that the British would enter the Adriatic, but not before the occupation of a greater length of Albanian coastline. In already bombarding Valona and Durazzo the British Navy has given an amazing example of its initiative. Owing to the existence of enemy minefields and the presence of submarines and aircraft, plus fortifications, at Ottranto and Valona, the Adriatic was hitherto deemed practically inaccessible; the British enterprise is therefore a masterpiece of audacity apart from its strategic implications."

★ "Son Telegram" says: "The Adriatic operation is a paramount victory; it is the highest expression of British sovereignty of the seas and an omen of the dark future in store for Italy."

★ "Vakit" observes: "The operation proves that Italy has not only lost offensive power but also the capacity to defend herself."

★ "Ulus" states: "After six months struggle against only a portion of Britain's might Italy's weakness is now fully manifest. The Italians used to term the Mediterranean 'Mare Nostrum' and now cannot even say as much for the Adriatic."

She said women should be so equipped in useful and cultural subjects that they should be in a position to control the bringing up of children till the ages of ten, after which boys and girls should be separated at once. Each child should receive individual attention and should be brought up on vocational lines. She advocated women's institutions and women's corporation to control the civic life of the city, particularly the development of agriculture and dairy farms and the marketing of the same. She gave the reconstruction of Turkey by way of an example. The Hon. Member and the Municipal Commissioner and Principal A. A. A. Indian Films For Current Week

"Padosi" Holds Great Promise

To Be Released At Two Theatres

Prabhat's new picture "Padosi" to be released on January 17 simultaneously at the Excelsior and the Central, provides a singular combination in screen history. With a dozen (or nearly a dozen) films to his credit—and almost none to his debit—Shantaram has obviously directed "Padosi" with a confident maturity and the distinctive style that was so noticeable a feature of "Duniya Na Mane" and "Admi".

Mazhar in "Padosi" and Dany in the Marathi version "Shejari" are actors who have stepped off the stage on the screen; and who are known to be able to make the very handicaps of their stage tradition do service before the camera.

As in "Padosi" and Jayashree in "Shejari", are a common type intrinsically; the principal difference between them consisting in the extent and nature of their screen experience. The same can be said of Balwant Singh and Chandrakant (who are in the Hindi and Marathi versions respectively)—only, with definitely greater emphasis. While Chandrakant has taken the screen with fair success in principal roles and indifferent ones alike, Balwant Singh has so far been a fleeting shadow, often a mere voice. That sounds strange, but it is true!

Noteworthy among stars common to both versions, is Jagirdar, actor; scenarist; director; master of several languages; a man of uniquely wide range in screen experience.

All things considered, "Padosi" will be a production, commanding the enthusiastic attention of those who seek substance in their entertainment. "Padosi" will be released at the Excelsior, while the Marathi version comes to the Central as "Shejari"; and the major difference in the cast of the two versions makes them rival each other in the public favour.

RECEPTION OF 'PUJA' AT PATHE

Sardar Akhtar And Sitara Give Bright Performances

National Studios' PUJA which was released on Saturday last has had enthusiastic reception from the public of Bombay. It is expected to have a long and successful run in the city.

Sardar Akhtar and Sitara take the two chief roles of the two sisters, who come into conflict over a lover and a child. It is no exaggeration to say that they have both given outstanding performances. They start out in a light hearted mood but in a short time, the seriousness of life overtakes them and they rise to great heights of tragic acting. Sardar Akhtar particularly, without the least effort passes from a gay young girl into a staid matron who suffers from being married to a man whom she does not love and subsequently become a widow. In the last part of the picture, she reflects with extreme accuracy the hardness of heart which is only natural from the many disappointments that has soured her life.

The supporting roles are also very well played by Jyoti, Sankar Prasad, Sunilini Devi, Satish, Shudo Advani and others.

Leela Desai in "Nartaki" of New Theatres at Minerva.

New Theatres' 'Nartaki' At Minerva

Looking from every angle—direction, scenario, photography, music, sets and costumes, "Nartaki" goes into the "MUST-SEE" list. Philosophy of love and life being the central theme of this poetic photoplay, it gives us a penetrating introduction to conflicts of various human emotions. Carnal passion versus sublime love, religion versus superstition, renunciation versus the world with its temptations are most powerfully portrayed in this drama.

"Nartaki", is a lyric of love and renunciation. It tells you the story of a young celestial, who lived with his other comrades passing hours in penance trying his best to be in the tune with the infinite. No luxury of the world could lure them.

But then, there comes up Nartaki, a dancer of great fame and beauty who had succeeded in enchanting the kings and courtiers, big millionaires and merchants. But as no woman on earth could enter the portals of that sacred monastery, she was refused admission and the main gate was shut in her face. But further developments only start here.

Damle And Fatehlal Visit Ajanta Caves For "Sant Sakhu"

That indefatigable pair, Messrs. Damle and Fatehlal, are again up and doing. True to the Prabhat tradition, they are on the lookout for new things—new locations, new backgrounds, new drapery and the like. With this view, they have recently left Poona on a tour to the Ajanta caves and other historical places, to collect material for the Art department. Meanwhile the work on "Sant Sakhu", music rehearsals and other preparations are proceeding apace.

Akhtar, Sitara and Jyoti have been starred. A story of mother love. (Second week).

Achievement For Winayak

Crowds Greet Navyug Comedy At West End

Although, it would be too early at this stage to forecast the exact number of weeks for which Navyug's comedy hit "Lagna Pahawe Karoon" now in its 3rd week, will continue to provide a gay laugh-time to Bombay cinegoers, it would be, all the same, only reasonable, after watching the overwhelming rush at New West End every day, since the release of the picture, to expect it to be as popular as any of the past comedy achievements of Winayak. That is not all; one who has witnessed the picture with the critical eye, may go further and assert that "Lagna Pahawe Karoon" is better than most of the comedies one has seen and that it breaks new grounds in the sphere of realistic comedy.

"But, 'Lagna Pahawe Karoon' is not only Winayak's triumph; his associates also share tributes for the high production qualities of the picture. Besides, Khandekar's crisp and humorous dialogues and Dada Chaudhkar's enchanting tunes enrich the appeal of the picture. And, who can forget the artistes? Damayanti Malvankar is at his hilarious best in this picture, his squint-eye, natural intonation and peculiar but unaffected mannerisms distinguish his portrayal of Chimanrao which once again proves that he is the finest comedian on the screen to-day. Jog's performance as Gundiabhai is so admirable that it places him among the ranks of distinguished actors on the screen. Baby Vimal, a little Meenakshi as many call her, contributes a brilliant performance which is devoid of all artificialities so common in most child artistes. Shakuntala and Damayanti also do creditably their roles.

Kishore Sahu's Dual Romance

Story Of Hero Of 'Punarmlan'

To the late Himansu Rai, idealist and dreamer, maker of films and creator of film stars, one day came a young man—tall, handsome, with the stamp of good education and good breeding.

"I want to work in the films" briefly declared the youth, and Himansu Rai smiled.

Within a few days the unknown young man, a fresh graduate from Nagpur, was assigned the leading role in Bombay Talkies' "Jeevan Prabhat", opposite Devika Rani. Rarely has such good fortune favoured a young aspirant to film fame.

That young man was Kishore Sahu who is undoubtedly one of the luckiest persons in the Indian film industry. In his very first picture, he got the rare privilege of appearing opposite India's leading film star, Devika Rani.

He not only learnt to act under the kindly eye of Himansu Rai but also assimilated some of the great producer's zeal for work. His passion for producing clean and healthy pictures. After leaving Bombay Talkies on completion of "Jeevan Prabhat", he was to play a yet more important role—as the organizer, Managing Director and Producer of India Artists Ltd., for which concern he produced and played the lead in "Bahurani".

But, more than anything else, Kishore Sahu is an artist, who wishes to express himself in his paintings, his short stories, in his roles in films. And, with the least self-consciousness, he exchanged the role of a studio executive for that of an artist when he signed

Congress Triumph In Ahmedabad Municipal Election

SAVARKAR'S ALLEGATIONS REFUTED

Mr. Jivanlal H. Divan, President, Ahmedabad City Congress Committee writes:—

It was with painful surprise that I read the reckless allegations made against Ahmedabad Congressmen by Sjt. Savarkar in his presidential address at Madras. It can be understood the charge must have felt at the complete rout suffered by his party at Ahmedabad; but that it should have prompted him to make baseless allegations of goondaism etc. is to say the least unworthy of the president of the Hindu Mahasabha. The success of the Congress candidates in the municipal elections at Ahmedabad, coming at such a critical time, has become a matter of all India importance and I welcome its mention, though entirely misleading at the annual conference of the Hindu Mahasabha.

As President of the Ahmedabad City Congress Committee I deem it my duty to repudiate most emphatically the allegations made by Sjt. Savarkar at Madras. It appears that either he has been misinformed or he has deliberately given an absolutely wrong picture or what took place during and after elections on the 9th of December. The Hindu Sabha volunteers realising that their candidates had fared very badly at the polling booths got excited and assaulted some young boys who worked for the Congress when they were passing after the elections were over along the main road in Khadia where the election office of the Hindu Mahasabha candidates was located. The volunteers of the Hindu Mahasabha were moving with this for the whole day of the 9th December and were shouting slogans and abusing the Congress and Congress workers. None of the Congress workers took any notice of these objectionable tactics and the public of Ahmedabad know full well how the spokesmen of the Hindu Mahasabha, local as well as those imported from outside, abused the Congress and Congressmen vehemently throughout the city in public meetings. Even Mahatmaj was not spared in these speeches. In spite of all this provocation the public of Ahmedabad having imbibed the principle of Mahatmaj remained absolutely peaceful throughout the election campaign and the elections in all the wards passed off without any incidents. Much to the disgust of the Hindu Sabha and its candidate the city responded magnificently to the call of the Congress returning 51 Congressmen out of 52 seats in the elections. One seat going to an independent candidate. All the Hindu Mahasabha candidates put up against them were defeated in the elections. Well may Sjt. Savarkar say that the voters of Ahmedabad voted foolishly for the Congress candidates, but I can say with confidence that these voters knew their minds full well and they believe that the interests of the country are safe in the hands of the Congress under the leadership of Mahatmaj. Voters of Ahmedabad are also conscious of the fact that the interest of the city are perfectly safe in the hands of the Congress party in the Municipality. To cloud the real issue the President of the Hindu Sabha has it is regretted indulged in false charges on information supplied to him by interested parties. I take this opportunity of repudiating most emphatically such charges as goondaism etc. levelled against the Congress. As a matter of fact these charges can apply be brought against the Hindu Sabhaites of Ahmedabad.

INSURANCE ACT OF 1938 CRITICISED

"Colossal Ignorance Of People's Assembly Party"

Mr. S. L. Tuli President of the Insurance Society of Lahore was "at home" to the members of the Society at Stiffles, the Mall, Lahore. About sixty members were present. After the "at home" Mr. S. L. Tuli delivered his inaugural address. In the course of his address he remarked as follows:—

Whereas the War may not affect the inherent strength of the institution of insurance, the strangling provisions of the Insurance Act of 1938 are likely to cripple industry in this country. For most of our people day difficulties we are indebted to people's party in the Assembly who helped to place the Insurance legislation in its present form on the statute through its colossal ignorance.

Continuing, he said that the Insurance may apply be compared to the Panch Prithvi whose every "Shikha" contributes to illuminate the Mandira sufficiently and fully. We may apply say these five Shikhas are the Branch Office or the Chief Agent, the Actuary, the Manager and last, but not the least, the Journalist or the Insurance Publicist.

"HOMEOPATHIC COLLEGE WITH BIG HOSPITAL"

Dr. Sadiq Gives Suggestions For Helping Cause Of Homeopathy

The following are extracts from Dr. S. M. Sadiq's presidential address to the eighth session of the All-India Homeopathic Medical Conference held at Nagpur:—

Before proceeding with our subject, let us pay our homage to Hahnemann, the Great, the founder of the system born in 1755 and died in 1843. He was an intellectual giant, a double-headed prodigy of learning and philosophy; a great reformer in medicines and best of all true lover of humanity, who by introducing this system permanently done away with the harsh measures employed in medicines like cauterization, blistering, bloodletting vomiting and purging, etc.

The word homeopathy is derived from Greek words Homoeos like and pathos feeling, i.e., drugs which produce feelings similar to the symptoms of the disease; hence it is curing the diseases by minute doses of such medicines which can produce like symptoms; therefore the watchword of Homeopathy:—Similia similibus curantur—let likes be cured by likes.

The superiority of Homeopathy over all other pathies can be judged even by a layman, e.g.,—its provings are conducted on men and men with education who can express their mental and physical conditions precisely and accurately while in all other pathies drugs are proved on animals and inarticulate creatures where the effects of shock produced when caught and anaesthetised through fright and fear which is further augmented with drug symptoms and above all the results are guessed and deduced, instead of being expressed by the patient.

The superiority of Homeopathy is further seen that a single medicine is prescribed at a time, their small doses, the good taste, their good looks and best of all the low prices, are so many factors which can claim for its superiority over all other pathies. Lastly by a timely remedy to this pathy operations are not infrequently rendered unnecessary.

Let all of us help the cause of Homeopathy by contributing with open hearts as charity begins at home; then approach all the States and the gentries or better still with the permission of the Government, start a lottery system to collect funds. Then lay the foundation of a genuine Homeopathic College with a big hospital attached to it. It is with great pleasure that the Indian Primary Homeopathic Biochemic and First Aid Institute has been recently started in Agartala by distinguished personalities; the Qualified Staff still more secures its position and I hope that it may flourish.

PERIYAR DISPUTE

Sir C. P. Argues Case For Travancore

TRIVANDRUM, Jan. 2. Arguments in the Periyar waters dispute between the Madras and Travancore Governments commenced yesterday before Sir N. R. Chatterjee, a judge of the Calcutta High Court, who was selected as an umpire.

Sir C. P. Ramaswami Iyer appearing for Travancore opened the arguments. He referred to the Periyar project as an irrigation project from the commencement and contended that the terms of the lease were clear, that the subject matter of the lease was only the right to a flowing stream for purposes of irrigation. Both on the construction of the lease document and general principles, Sir C. P. Ramaswami Iyer argued, the documents were of limited and not of absolute character and dealt only with rights to a stream of flowing water. Both expressly and by implication the document negated all uses except irrigation. The construction of Hydro-Electric works was not within the contemplation of the parties at the time the lease was entered into and the generation of electricity from Periyar waters was foreign to the intentions of the parties at the time of the lease.

Sir Ramaswami Iyer here referred to the various authorities to show that where the intention of parties was restricted that should be given effect to.

The generation of electricity depended upon certain factors which did not form part of the sum total of the rights based under the lease deed in question.

Sir Ramaswami Iyer will continue the arguments to-day.

PROGRAMME BY INDIAN TROOPS IN SINGAPORE

SINGAPORE (By Mail). The band of the Hyderabad Regiment now in Singapore and a group of N.C.O.s and sappers of the same and other regiments are the first representatives of the Indian Army units serving in Malaya to take part in a broadcast programme to be heard in India. This recorded programme is being broadcast from Delhi on January 5, 1941, at 6.15 p.m.

In response to an invitation from the headquarters of their brigade, the men of the Hyderabad Regiment came forward with a complete programme, including military music, talks by N.C.O.s and sappers and community singing by a group of men. The programme is intended to give listeners in India an idea of how the Indian troops in Malaya are enjoying their service overseas and the musical items are included to make the programme as "lively" as possible.

Ever since the early days of the war, the men of the Hyderabad Regiment have been from London describing the doings of the Indian soldiers serving with the British Expeditionary Force in France, the men in Malaya have wanted to broadcast from Singapore to India. The opportunity has only just been made available and there was a big response to the invitation for programme material which was sent round to all the Indian units attached to the Malaya Command.

Owing to the uncertainty of good reception of the Singapore broadcast in India, the programme was recorded in the studio and the records sent by air mail to New Delhi.

The short talks by the N.C.O.s and sappers will provide interesting insights into the doings of the Indian troops in Malaya. One N.C.O., Havildar Pan Singh Bisht, gives his impressions of jungle warfare training.

He points out that the physical features of Malaya are quite different from those of India, dense jungles, thick rubber plantations, ravines and swamps being quite common in the country where the Indian troops have been training.

"To penetrate the dense jungle," Havildar Pan Singh declares "is really a combat with nature. Apart from the tall trees there is a great deal of thick undergrowth, and to keep going in the right direction through such country is a matter of considerable skill. In these jungles there are monkeys, snakes, leeches and mosquitoes and sometimes heavy rain and mud makes going difficult."

Havildar Pan Singh, who observes that he is having a "jolly life" in Malaya, mentions the rubber plantation country. "We appreciate the simple lives of the rubber plantation workers—most of them are from South India—and we have found them hospitable and cheery community. On the large numbers to give us a cheer as we go by."

Another Indian soldier comments on the good quality of the rations issued to the troops. "An abundant supply of good ghee, milk, sugar, spices, chicken and cigarettes." He refers to the troops' visits to the bazaars and the public gardens and the fact that the sappers had permission to go every where in the town.

Lance-Havildar Kishan Singh tells of the sports activities of the Indian troops in Malaya. He says the troops have gained a good reputation for hockey, and most units have teams for volleyball, basketball and football. During the evenings, the men play indoor games in the canteens and at weekends visit museums, the zoos, factories and other places of interest in Singapore. He describes a pagal gymnastics held recently by one of the units.

Abdul Qadir, a sapper in one of the units, tells how he enjoyed his visits to the Great World and New World, two popular amusement centres in Singapore and his amusement at the Malayan and Chinese dancing seen there.

BARODA—To provide employment to villagers carding, spinning and weaving classes are conducted by Government at several places in the State, besides help given to a number of institutions engaged in such works. As a result of this policy of Government the hand-weaving industry has received a considerable impetus.

PATNA—In view of the prevailing political situation in the country the Patna District Congress Executive has decided that the Congress will not participate in the forthcoming Municipal Elections.—A. P.

NAZI THREATS TO FRANCE

Alleged Sins Of Omission
And Commission Of People Of Vichy Govt.

LONDON (By Cable).

The New York correspondent of "The Times" cables:

Dispatches from Vichy indicate that there is strong German dissatisfaction with the progress of Franco-German collaboration since Laval was ousted from the Vichy Government and there is even a possibility that collaboration is about to collapse.

Laval's close friend Marcel Dail Editor of the "L'Ouvre" again in that newspaper berated the "men of Vichy" who he asserted were attempting under orders from Marshal Petain to provoke the Germans into violating the Hitler-Petain agreement reached at Montoire.

He intimated that they had deliberately organised a scarcity of food so that one day the "bad tempers" of the people of Paris and its suburbs would "burst out and bring about incidents that would provoke intervention by the occupying troops." That would be a fine day for the adversaries of collaboration, he declared.

The German Wireless Station at Stuttgart has warned the French people that even if the Reynauds, Daladieres and "other boaters at the Bellevue prison" were punished, "the French people will not thereby extinguish before history their debt" and that they could not escape their share of responsibility for the war. Nevertheless they were being offered the opportunity to "redeem their errors." If France were not to be excluded from the list of nations which were organising a "real peace" the French must associate themselves to-day with the work of collaboration for the renovation of Europe to which their conquerors have so generously invited them.

The broadcaster declared significantly that the "German Army is doing the impossible to-day in order that its presence in France should not produce any friction" and that it was the duty of Frenchmen to say their "mea culpa" for the sins they have committed and to promise to "collaborate without reticence with the other nations of European Continent."

Laval, since his release from arrest was obtained from Marshal Petain by the intervention of Abetz, the German Ambassador, has become increasingly arrogant. It is reported, and makes little or no effort to conceal his dislike and contempt for Marshal Petain.

RELIGION OF ABORIGINALS

India Govt.'s Instructions
To Census Enumerators

YEOTMAL, Jan. 3.

In reply to an inquiry by Mr. M. S. Aney as to what steps the Government of India had taken so far to communicate necessary instructions to the Government of Bihar regarding matters referred to in his interview with the Home Member in connection with enumeration of members of the aboriginal tribes in Bihar in the coming census, the Home Government has sent him a reply saying that such modifications in the instructions regarding Aboriginal Tribes in Bihar as was considered necessary have been approved by the Government of India and are being effected.

It may be recalled that Mr. M. S. Aney and Bhal Permand met the Home Member in November to discuss some points relating to the recording of the religion of the members of the Aboriginal Tribes of Bihar, Orissa and C. P. and Bihar. The deputations pointed out that Aborigines such as Santhals, Mundas, Oraons, Gonds and Bhils should have the right to give the name of their religion as every other Hindu has and that the enumerator must record it without interrogating him, regarding the observance of any festivals. The procedure laid down in the instructions left a loophole to enable the enumerator to have his own inference and thus amount to unwarranted and unjustifiable interference with the liberty of the person to profess and confess his own religion.

GOVERNMENT INSTRUCTIONS

The Hon. the Home Member, with full concurrence of Mr. Yeats, stated that the Government of India had no desire to deny members the right of professing and naming their religion.

Instructions had been issued to the effect that enumerators should ask a number of Aboriginal Tribes to name his religion and that if he failed to name his religion then alone enquiries will be made relating to the observance of festivals such as Sarhal etc.

The deputations, thereupon, pressed the questions with regard to festivals should include Diwali, Bakrid or Christmas also and that if the answer showed that a member observed any of these three, his religion should be shown as Hindu, Islam or Christianity respectively, notwithstanding the fact that he observed common tribal festivals.—A. P.

House, Bombay, in the presence of royal members of both the parties, and then the official announcement was made on Tuesday last.

H. the Maharaj Kumar Shree Madhubha Sahib, officers and hundreds of Cutchi merchants. The Maharaj Kumar was garlanded by Hon. Sheth Shantidas Akuran, Rao Bahadur Naraji Ladha, Sheth Moraji Jadavji Vaidya, Sheth Shamji Hemraj and others.

ANNAMALAI 'VARSITY TROUBLE

Vice-Chancellor Tells His Story

MADRAS, Jan. 2.

Sir K. V. Reddi, Vice-Chancellor of the Annamalai University, in the course of a statement about the recent incidents in connection with arrests of students of the Annamalai University says: "There were only two incidents. The first was when the police came to conduct a search of the rooms of certain students of the hostel. The second was when six students were arrested at the camp of the District Magistrate in Chidambaram village which was entirely outside the University area.

With reference to the first incident, not having the mentality of civil resister and having always been a law abiding citizen it was clearly my duty to permit the police officer to carry out his duties in accordance with the warrant he held. At the time of the search the police were assaulted by a number of students. I came down immediately to the spot and pacified them.

As regards the second incident, what exactly took place was this. On December 13, the District Magistrate sent me a demi-official letter requesting me to send to the P.W.D. Inspection Bungalow where he was then camping, seven students whose names were mentioned in the letter together with the wardens of the respective hostels. In the light of the serious incidents that had occurred on the 21st November and in view of the fact that the letter came from the head of the District Administration, I felt it was clearly my duty to take some action on the letter.

I sent for these students and made it plain to them that it was perfectly open to them either to comply with the District Magistrate's request or not. After some consultations amongst themselves, the students decided to go. The incidents that happened subsequently took place outside the University area and I had no part whatever in them."

Concluding he says: "In the light of the brief statement of the actual facts given above the public can judge for themselves to what extent I, as the Vice-Chancellor of the University, have carried out my responsibilities.—A. P.

ship was registered in twenty-five minutes. Dr. Khan again hit a sixer, the ball landing on the sight-screen behind the bowler. The bowling seemed to have lost its sting and Ram Singh too got a couple of fours off Amir Elahi. Jehangir Khan got his fifty, including five fours and two sixers, in 34 minutes. The teams adjourned for tea with the score at 337 Ram Singh batting 36, Dr. Jehangir Khan batting 50.

The Maharaja of Patiala himself went on to bowl on the resumption after tea, in attempting a big hit off Amir Elahi, Jehangir Khan was caught by Qamaruddin for sixty. (350-9-30). Khan had played a breezy innings for forty minutes and had hit six fours and two sixes. K. Bhattacharjee came in as the last man. Ram Singh all the time was playing polished cricket. With his score at 45 he was caught by Amir Elahi off his own bowling. (364-10-45). The innings had lasted 217 minutes.

Viceroy's XI Bat

Viceroy's Eleven had only twenty minutes' batting before the close of play and opened with Hindlekar and Mankad to the bowling of S. Bannerjee from the High Court end. Hindlekar four for his first stroke and then turned Bannerjee to the leg boundary. Longfield supported the attack from the other end and Mankad broke his duck by turning the bowler to the leg, but Longfield met with success with the fifth ball of his first over. The Indian wicket keeper essayed a hook and Dilawar brought off a nice catch. (9)18.

BAD START.

It was a bad start, more so in view of the huge total they are facing. Murawut Hussain filled the breach and S. Bannerjee made an unsuccessful appeal for l.b.w. against Mankad. S. Bannerjee was getting a lot of kick from the ground and he had Murawut Hussain l.b.w. for 6 with the total at 16.

Mankad was digging himself in and was now joined by Qamaruddin. At close of play the Viceroy's Eleven had made 19 for two wickets. Mankad batting 5, Qamaruddin batting 0.

Conversion And Dissolution Of Marriage

Calcutta High Court Judgment In Case Under Islamic Law

CALCUTTA, Jan. 3.

Can a woman, who is converted to Islam after her marriage, obtain a dissolution of marriage under Islamic Law from her husband, if he refuses to embrace her new faith?

Mr. Justice Edgley of the Calcutta said "No" to this question to-day delivering judgment in a suit brought by Noor Jehan Begum asking "inter alia" for a declaration that her marriage with Eugen Tiscenko, a Russian subject, at present residing in Edinburgh, stood dissolved.

Noor Jehan Begum, of Russian parentage, was married to Tiscenko at Berlin on May 20, 1931, according to civil rites. She came to Calcutta in September, 1938, and became converted to Islam. She then called her husband asking him to embrace her new faith but he refused. She filed a suit in the Calcutta High Court, praying for dissolution of marriage and other reliefs under the Mohammedan Law.

His Lordship held that the relevant code of Mohammedan Law were compiled for use in Muslim States, in which Islam was the state religion. He held that in the present case the rule upon which the plaintiff relied must be regarded obsolete and opposed to public policy. It conflicted with the most fundamental principles of English Law, which were followed in India in matrimonial cases. If the plaintiff was at all entitled to dissolution of her marriage, she could only obtain it according to the law of her husband's domicile, i. e. Russia.

His Lordship, therefore, dismissed the suit.

Problem Of Indian Nationals In Ceylon

"Position Is Almost Desperate": Kotalawala
Raises Scare: Bandaranaike On His Talks With Indian Delegation

MADRAS, Jan. 3. Mr. J. L. Kotalawala, Minister for Communications and Public Works and Mr. S. W. R. D. Bandaranaike, Minister of Local Administration devoted considerable parts of their speeches as Chairman of the Reception Committee and President respectively at the fourteen annual session of the All-Ceylon Village Committee's Conference to the Indian problem.

THE INDIAN PROBLEM.
After referring to the difficulties consequent on the war, Mr. Kotalawala stated "amidst all these troubles, we have a much more difficult problem to solve—and this is a life and death problem for us—which if not solved in a manner beneficial to us will mean our total extinction. This is the Indian problem—it is now pretty obvious that India has no feelings for us, but has only the interest of their nationals at heart. Our nationals did not go there to ask for favours. All that we wanted was to have the same rights that other countries like Australia, South Africa, Canada and even India herself enjoys, namely the right of every country to decide who the nationals of the country should be."

Mr. Kotalawala added "it is impossible to have 900,000 Indians citizens of this country without bringing ourselves to a standard of beggary and a loss of identity. The position is almost desperate. Therefore, we must not hesitate whatever the consequences may be to secure for ourselves the country of our ancestors."

CEYLON'S LIMITATIONS.
Mr. Bandaranaike who was one of the Ceylon Government delegates for the recent Indo-Ceylonese exploratory talks at Delhi declared that in their conversations with the Indian delegation their (Ceylon's) attitude was that in discussing the Indian question the particular conditions existing in Ceylon must be given full consideration—the increasing population, the rapidly growing unemployment, the falling standard of living, the limited opportunities for further employment and the increasingly large sums being spent by the Government on unemployment. But we stated that in spite of these difficulties, we were prepared to extend full rights and privileges of Ceylonese citizenship to those Indians who had severed their connections with India and had a real abiding interest in Ceylon.

FOR FULL EQUALITY OF RIGHTS.
"The position of the Indian delegation however was roughly that India put forward claims on behalf of Indians in various parts of the British Empire for full equality of rights with the indigenous inhabitants merely on grounds of residence for a certain number of years and that it was difficult for them to make any important modification in this general policy in the case of Ceylon through fear of creating a precedent and that therefore it was difficult for them to envisage a definition of citizenship calculated to meet the difficulties we mentioned."

"It will be realised" proceeded Mr. Bandaranaike "that there was a fundamental difference of opinion on this question. The issue is now clear. We have to consider the position and the necessary steps to be taken."—A. P.

SENDING OF PARCELS.

Standard parcels of clothing are also sent by the Red Cross and St. John's organisations to prisoners of war. Certain articles of clothing may be included in "personal parcels" with other gifts of a purely personal kind; such parcels may only be sent once a quarter and then only by the next-of-kin. Parcels of books, games and so forth may, however, be sent direct to the prisoner by a firm in the United Kingdom, which holds a permit, most of the big London stores and bookshops hold such permits.

MONEY REMITTANCES.
As a temporary measure only, money not exceeding £2 a month may be sent to a British or Indian Commissioned Officer, who is a prisoner of war by payment through Cox's branch of Lloyds Bank, Limited, 6, Pall Mall, London, S. W. 1.

Remittances of money for other ranks are not allowed.
HOW TO COMMUNICATE.
The procedure for writing to, or otherwise communicating with, prisoners of war is rather complicated. Full details, with a leaflet issued by the General Post Office, London, can be obtained from the Red Cross Commissioner, 20, Talkatora Road, New Delhi.

As the supply of these leaflets is limited, it is requested that only those directly concerned will apply for copies.—A. P.

HOURS OF WORK ON B. N. RAILWAY

CALCUTTA, Jan. 3. Certain difficulties arising out of the application in January one of the new hours of employment regulations in the Bengal Nagpur Railway were discussed to-day between Mr. A. Khaleeli, conciliation officer to the Government of India and Mr. A. Duncan, General Manager, B. N. Railway and Mr. V. R. Kalappa, President of the All-India Trade Union Congress.

The main objection of the workers has been that under these regulations, which control the hours of work and periods of rest of workers of Indian Railways, they are required to work two shifts in one day in order to earn a weekly off of 24 hours.

It is understood that both Mr. Duncan and Mr. Kalappa will meet the Hon. Sir A. Ramaswami Mudaliar, Commerce and Labour Member, to-morrow to discuss the matter with him.—A. P.

Royist Anti-Fascists Get Busy

CALCUTTA, Jan. 3. A programme for mobilising public opinion in support of the war against Fascism was chalked out by the Calcutta Radical Democratic Party, which met at a Conference, yesterday evening under the presidency of Mr. K. K. Sinha. Mr. M. N. Roy was present.

The members of the party were directed by the Conference to carry on active anti-Fascist propaganda in the city and suburbs, particularly in the Buxtee and labour areas.

A Committee of three persons was formed to devise ways and means for carrying on anti-Fascist propaganda in co-operation with War Committees and Civic Guards units.

The Conference by another resolution, appealed to the workers of the world, and particularly of India to put up a "tough fight against the menace of Fascism."—A. P.

The Half-Column By "Dim"

I found some talent. Prabhat Vaidya sends a few perfect lines for the Half-Column. He writes: In a Federal Public Services Commission Examination of 1939 I find the young hopefuls were invited to explain the following expression

- (i) First Water.
- (ii) Second Sight.
- (iii) Third Degree.
- (iv) Fourth Estate.
- (v) Fifth Column.
- (vi) Sixth Sense.
- (vii) Seventh Heaven!

Seventh Heaven! And one bright student answered: "A grey Arab Horse, of course."

A young man steps into the office, leans over the table and confidentially whispers: "I sent you my book of poems." So I look through the pile of papers and find "Neem Tree" by Bhagrat Mehta. It is supposed to be a freak of nature that there happens to be a sweet branch on a bitter Neem Tree. It is dedicated to "My Dear Professor Mansukhbhai Jhaveri—M. A. and to 'The Whisperings of the Soul' of Dr. Peter Bolkie."

After which freak of a dedication, I turn the pages with a shudder, lest I should recall. Frankly I think it a sacrilege to call everything that rhymes or has meter "poetry". Tell me, is it fair for a young man to write this and get away with it—It's headed: "Coming Down From Swing."

"When I was on the swing I did not think of anything but of mirth and life unreal. Now, coming down from swing I think and think all sort of things including the fancy that life's a dream so swing again."

That was Bhagrat Mehta on swing! Frankly, I prefer to hear Teddy Weatherford swing.
